

1. Friendicoes

One of the most noted animal rescue NGOs in Delhi, Friendicoes serves the dual purpose of a shelter as well as a hospital. Its convenient location in South Delhi makes it easily accessible from Gurugram & Noida too. The place is always full of strays, bruised and vulnerable animals in need of treatment and care. For being in the service for 38 years, this shelter has earned the trust of the people and receives a colossal influx of animals. Apart from abandoned and lost pets & unwell strays, the shelter tends to birds and monkeys in distress as well which seldom make an appearance. At any given point, you'll find about 150 to 200 animals in their shelter home, most of which are either recuperating from raw wounds or sickness.

2. Red Paws Rescue

Red Paws Rescue came into existence in 2009, making it fairly new in the NGO territory.

Their ultimate aim includes mass sterilization of stray animals in various territories of the city. Finding homes for stray dogs, providing shelter to abandoned pets, better medical care and raising awareness amongst the masses and encouraging animal lovers to adopt instead of buying pets are some of the other things these guys do. RPC is also closely associated with several animal shelters throughout the city and assists in providing homes for abandoned and stray dogs.

3. Krishna Ashram

Krishna Ashram is known for spreading awareness on how to care for and nurture dogs, especially street dogs, plus they teach children how to be kind to animals and why it is imperative that they should be looked after. Their 24*7 care and shelter facility helps in protecting the often neglected and vulnerable stray dogs. Their main aim is to provide clean drinking water to street dogs and treat them for parasitic infections and wounds.
